A good thesis is a roadmap for your paper. It tells your readers where you are going and how you will get there. This provides you with the necessary framework to begin writing your first draft.

Step 1 - Your Claim
Ask yourself, “what do I want the reader to know, believe, feel, or do after they’ve read my paper?” This becomes your claim. It must be a single arguable point and is the final destination of your paper.

Step 2 - Your Main Points
After you have made your claim ask yourself “how do I know this?” and “Why is it true?” Your concise, 2-4 answers to those questions will become your paper’s main points. It is how you will arrive at your destination.

Step 3 - Putting It Together
Once you have identified where you are going and how you will get there you can put your thesis together into one grammatically correct sentence.

Your Turn

WHERE AM I GOING?

HOW WILL I GET THERE?

MY THESIS

WHERE AM I GOING?

HOW WILL I GET THERE?

MY THESIS

A good thesis is a roadmap for your paper. It tells your readers where you are going and how you will get there. This provides you with the necessary framework to begin writing your first draft.

Step 1 - Your Claim
Ask yourself, “what do I want the reader to know, believe, feel, or do after they’ve read my paper?” This becomes your claim. It must be a single arguable point and is the final destination of your paper.

Step 2 - Your Main Points
After you have made your claim ask yourself “how do I know this?” and “Why is it true?” Your concise, 2-4 answers to those questions will become your paper’s main points. It is how you will arrive at your destination.

Step 3 - Putting It Together
Once you have identified where you are going and how you will get there you can put your thesis together into one grammatically correct sentence.

Your Turn

WHERE AM I GOING?

HOW WILL I GET THERE?

MY THESIS

WHERE AM I GOING?

HOW WILL I GET THERE?

MY THESIS